Like our name Forest River, our houses have a long standing commitment to the environment. This began with managements continuous creation of houses designed with green materials, by software and employee ingenuity that eliminates scrap, promotes energy efficiency and construction techniques. We source out rapidly renewable materials, because they may have lower overall impacts than synthetic materials. It's incorporating products that make good use of raw materials. Our house designs are resource efficient and innovative.

Green building rating systems typically include energy efficiency, recycling even the smallest amount of material as well as the production of the homes framing and outer shell. Paying close attention as to how materials are ordered, received, inventoried, and installed is critical. Forest River Housing was recognized as an original voluntary certification under HUD's renewed emphasis on quality assurance per 24 CFR 3282 audited by NTA, Inc.

Our commitment is sustainable due to our people meeting the needs of the present, while reducing negative impacts to future generations. We wanted our customers to have the satisfaction and reassurance that our facilities and building systems meet Green qualifications.

We continue our dedication to our customers with quality products and the best of solutions for your housing needs.
